

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A printing machine as described has a plurality of image formation units each of which serves to perform an printing operation on a printing sheet.

Particularly, the printing machine is capable of reporting an error in the printing 5 operation in order to minimize the time period during which the printing machine does not work, and of effectively supporting the printing job of the user.